Bio and Research Statement

A graduate from the university of Ottawa with a Joint Honours Degree in Public Administration and Political Science, I am currently a Master in Political Science student. My main area of focus is the relationship between the State and religion in the Chinese world involving issues regarding identity, nationalism and religious/legal pluralism. In the context of my master's degree thesis and under the supervision of Professor André Laliberté, my main goal will be to conduct an exploratory field research among Taiwan's Muslim communities to understand the diversity and tendencies of their political behaviors, the role of Taiwan's religious pluralism in the formation of it's national identity as well as the state's capacity for adaptation.
