

THE RELIGION AND DIVERSITY PROJECT/RELIGION ET DIVERSITÉ

Christopher R. Cotter
Ph.D. Candidate
Lancaster University, UK
c.cotter@lancaster.ac.uk

Bio and Research Statement

Christopher R. Cotter is a Ph.D. Candidate at Lancaster University, UK, working with Professor Kim Knott. His research focuses upon the discourses on 'religion' in the South Side of Edinburgh, the concepts of 'non-religion' and 'the secular', and the ensuing theoretical implications for Religious Studies. His previous degrees at the University of Edinburgh focused upon 'New Atheism' and alternative typologies of 'non-religion'. Chris has published journal articles, book chapters, and book reviews in these areas. He is co-editor of Social Identities between the Sacred and the Secular with Abby Day and Giselle Vincett (Ashgate, 2013), and the forthcoming collections New Atheism: Critical Perspectives and Contemporary Debates (with Philip Quadrio, Springer, 2014) and After 'World Religions': Reconstructing Religious Studies (with David G. Robertson, Acumen, 2015). He is Founding Editor and Podcast Co-Host at the Religious Studies Project. He is also Editor and Bibliography Manager at the Nonreligion and Secularity Research Network, See his personal blog, or academia.edu page for a full CV.